Thank you very much for the consideration into your team. I am encouraged to provide as much transparency as possible into affirming alignment of our values, and I am excited about this potential opportunity. I am a family first leader, who highly values time with his wife and children. Our community often finds my family and I adventuring together in our quaint town in northern Michigan.

As I read through the job description emphasizing on growing an analytics team, I increased in excitement at the opportunity to blend my passions for data leadership with enabling data within an organization. I am an entrepreneurial and strategic thinker, as I often wonder what problem to solve next or how I can improve on an existing process.

At 3Cloud, an Azure and Power BI consulting firm, focused on cloud infrastructure, application development, data analytics and AI/ML. My focus is on servant leadership, where I have been responsible for the delivery leadership, business and people development of multiple service offerings; Data and Analytics, Application Development, DevOps, and Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning, within a Managed Services practice. I fostered a culture of innovation, continuous improvement, and professional growth within the practice, and I would be happy to provide references as affirmation. Also, you can review the LinkedIn recommendations from my past team members.

My goal is to continue to be able to establish myself and my teams as a team of hardworking, diligent colleagues, who are excited to collaborate across business and sales leaders to create innovative solutions that meet clients' data and analytics needs. I am encouraged to be a part of a team that is located across the country and/or globe, and am eager to continue to grow in skills and expertise.

Data and analytics when paralleled with core values can be a powerful tool for any organization. I thrive when delivering towards a client first mentality, making sure we create the greatest experience for our clients, while understanding that business runs on delivery. I appreciate your apparent balance of culture to make sure that the team is healthy, which ultimately benefits all parties involved.

In my experiences, I have worked with a number of organizations, helping them get “one step closer” to an analytic solution that allows them to make business decisions with their data on a regular basis. One specific organization I helped them understand the vision as to why transforming from a hybrid on-prem and cloud architecture into a cloud base architecture would enable their executive, sales, finance and operation leadership team members was the best solution to enable a data decision making mentality.

Once again, thank you for your consideration, and I look forward to an opportunity for further conversation.

Sincerely,

James Mitterling

James is a thoughtful, engaged, and visionary leader of his team, whose passion for stewarding his business is only exceeded by his care for his team and clients. I am grateful to work for someone who genuinely cares about me as a person, while still holding me and our team to high standards for performance and growth that keep us engaged and motivated to succeed. James is also not hesitant to 'get his hands dirty' when called upon to assist a high priority client delivery; he leads by example rather than directive and brings his extensive knowledge in the Azure stack to bear. I would recommend James wholeheartedly for any leadership opportunity.

It's difficult to summarize the vast nature of James' capabilities in this format, but I will attempt to highlight his skill under two core areas.

Leadership: James' skill as a leader goes beyond simply managing people (which he is exceptional at). But also extends to the management and strategic direction of projects with internal and external stakeholders. Both his clients and teammates look to James for his insight and ability to provide clarity to a project while accurately manage expectations.

Technical capabilities: As a recognized leader among his peers, James is regularly called upon by various departments across the company to consult and lead technical projects. Even with his advanced skills, he was patient enough to work with me in the most basic technical skills as I began to learn SQL, XML, and business analysis. Without a doubt, James is the manager I learned the most from, and who most substantially contributed to my career growth.

James is a great asset to the Spring Arbor University Marketing program. I hired him to assist me in managing all the special events put on by the marketing program for Gainey School of Business and the University. He is a self-starter, pro-active with problem solving, and excellent at anticipating needs. He coaches students who are taking on event planning for the first time to make sure the events are up to the standard expected of the marketing program events. He has experience resolving interpersonal conflicts, managing projects, and using social media to promote events.

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to express my whole-hearted recommendation for James Mitterling for a leadership position at your organization.

James and I began working together in August 2020 at BlueGranite. Although I was not on his team at that time, James was the first to welcome me to the company and include me in team events – an especially critical component of a remote-first company, and one that helped me feel the strong bonds between coworkers. During our time at BlueGranite, I witnessed many of James' business initiatives and the growth of his team. His focus on strategy provided a cornerstone of recurring income for the company and resulted in the most satisfied clients and team members that I have seen in my career.

In July 2023, I transferred to James' Managed Services team at 3Cloud, because in the face of a highly corporate environment, his team was still the closest knit, most loyal team. For the next year, I watched James balance the needs of the business with the needs of his team, and walk a tightrope line of adaptability and empathy. He reinvented team roles to deliver better service to clients while allowing team members to play to their strengths and working genius. He ensured that while every team member felt heard, cared for, and included in decisions, he was also focused on the big picture of the company, and delivering the value necessary for huge growth goals.

The blend of caring and strategy is one that I've never seen to the degree that James has it, and it shows in his high employee retention/satisfaction and many client renewals, even in a challenging economic environment. He can adapt to any situation and challenge that comes his way, and I feel utterly confident that he would be a tremendous asset to your organization, whether he is focused on strategic decisions, managing individuals, or both.

If you have any questions or would like more specific anecdotes about James as my coworker and manager, please do not hesitate to reach out to me via any of my contact methods above. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Sabrina Jordan

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to wholeheartedly recommend James Mitterling. Having had the pleasure of working closely with James at 3Cloud, I can confidently attest to his remarkable ability to foster growth and deliver results.

James is a leader who thrives on thinking outside of the box to solve problems, create success and drive sales growth. His ability to approach challenges from fresh perspectives consistently leads to innovative solutions that benefit both the team and clients. James is deeply committed to working alongside his team, offering both his data expertise and problem-solving skills to enhance collaboration and creativity. As a natural coach, James has an unparalleled talent for enabling team members to shine. He creates a positive environment where individuals feel valued and supported, empowering them to unlock their full potential. Through his guidance, team members feel empowered to grow in confidence and develop their skill sets.

James also ensures that his team members are stretched in ways that promote professional growth. He provides opportunities for development and encourages stepping outside the comfort zone – both in soft skills and technical skills. His innate understanding of customer needs and how to fulfill them sets a gold standard, driving both client satisfaction and organizational success.

Above all, James leads with compassion. He understands the value of empathy in leadership, forging strong connections with his team and cultivating trust at every level. This approach not only motivates those around him but also fosters a culture of respect and shared purpose.

I have no doubt that James would be a tremendous asset to any organization fortunate enough to have him. He combines innovative thinking, a team-first mentality, and an unwavering commitment to excellence.

Sincerely,
Erin Phillips
